Eliza A. Tkacz

Eliza A. Tkacz lives and creates in Lodz (Poland). She is a singer–songwriter playing the piano, a music and video producer. The music compositions she creates are usually conceptual works, inspired by Scandinavian music, paintings from the nature and artistic photography. For some, due to the timbre of her voice and ambient space in music, she is compared to Björk, Tori Amos or Kate Bush. In addition, she is interested in digital painting and animation, as well as science and technology. She presented her productions in the Internet, where she took up the challenge of synergic combination of her biggest interests, directing and producing music videos.

In 2018, she released three singles: “Believing in silence (Home)”, „Swan” and „Until Death Do Us Part”, which constitute the conceptual triptych, reflecting current social problems. In 2019, she released her debut EP album “Flash Frames”. The album consists of four songs about love, placed chronologically in the past, present and the future. However, the feeling is not the most important, but the internal transformation that accompanies it. The upcoming “Itaka” EP is a sonically diverse album, combining electronic music with guitar and piano sounds with prominent drums. The story of the album is inspired by Homer’s Odyssey. It is saturated with feminine sensitivity, but also with strength and character.

On "Itaka" Tour, the band presents melodic, but also very energetic songs. Both, enthusiasts of delicate vocalism and those who prefer more dynamic compositions, will find a musical space for themselves - from emotional verses, through ostinato bridges to rhythmic choruses. They played on festivals in Poland – Songwriter Łódź Festiwal, Powidz Jam Festival, Hope Fest. They won grand prix at Łódzka Noc Muzyki. In 2021, they will play in Sweden at Live at Heart.
